REVIEW - 16

FRIDAY, 1 APRIL 2016 | WPP : REGN.NO.GWL.DN.11

EDITORIAL

Akash Jaini | Class of 2016

Hey guys it's going to be a long chat here on editorial after quite a while and if you don't enjoy this piece, forgive me for being a little rusty.

I suggest you take everything I say today with a pinch of salt considering it is April Fool's day. Make sure you keep this in mind throughout to avoid any unsuspecting pranks which you may fall victim to. Do make sure you plan every practical joke very meticulously, as everyone is prone to be subjected to something fishy today. Consider yourselves warned!

Moving on, we are recovering from the hangover of another enthusiastically celebrated event in school – Holi. The outgoing batch plays Holi with much fervour; a tradition wherein seniors leave behind a mark on everyone – both physical and an emotional one.

The joy of this colourful holiday however is somewhat dampened due to the most dreaded time of the academic year for a student - Exam time. While the junior classes wrapped up their exams around Holi, they are now eagerly awaiting their results in CGPA format whilst the 12th grade Board exams seem to stretch on forever. To add insult to injury , Warner Brothers have just released their comic book blockbuster movie – 'Batman vs Superman- the Dawn of Justice' on the 25th of March and try as much as we may, the thought of the 'Dark Knight' going head to head with the 'Man of Steel' seems to involuntarily take priority over academics in our subconscious.

Since we're talking about super heroes, the new Prefectorial team has been announced with Mriganka Ghosh of Review fame being appointed the Senior School Prefect for the year 2016 -17. I congratulate the entire team and wish them all the very best for the upcoming year.

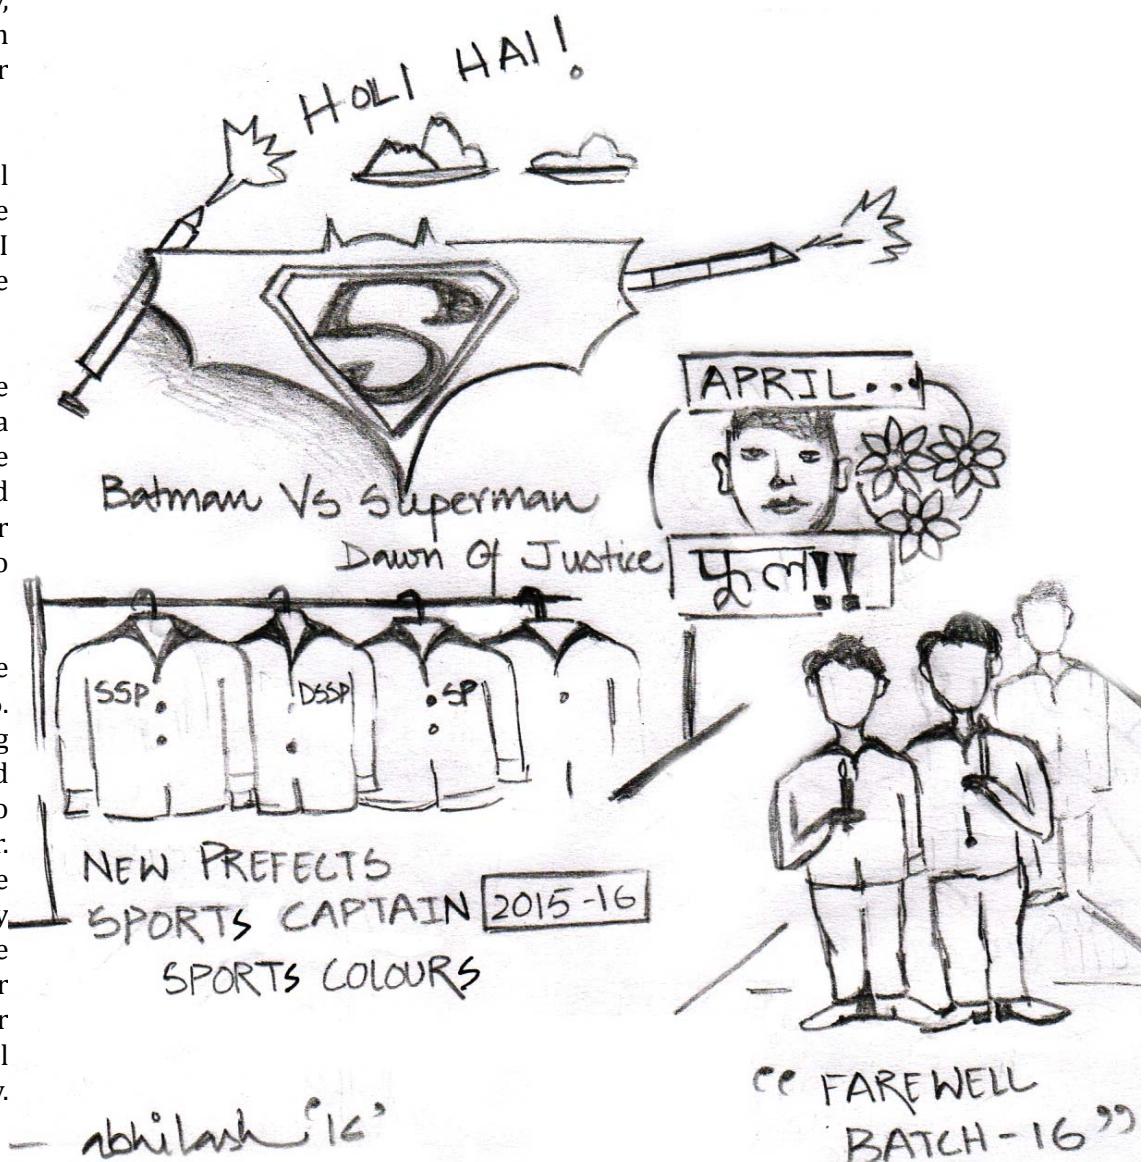

Moving on, I was recently (albeit a little late) appointed as the School Games Captain for the year 2015-16, which came as a surprise to everyone, including me. But I am glad that excellence and achievements in individual sports is now being recognized in school and the classification of sports as either major or minor sports is finally coming to an end in ways more than one. Thanks to the new Director of sports, Mr Naman Saraswat.

Now that I have covered everything else, I feel like it's finally time to address the elephant in the room - the graduating Batch of 2016. The other day Shantanu (Ex-Senior Editor) and I were discussing the former's peculiar habits whilst on a train, which I had noticed while travelling with him often; which he had reluctantly agreed to rectify and refrain from, the next time we travel on a train together. It hit us pretty hard that we may never travel together again. We will no longer go on a school Review outing or the Jaipur Literary Fest together. We will no longer prepare for an Inter-School debate together and we will no longer participate in school plays together etc. I will also never be able to play an IPSC squash tournament or work with a Scindia MUN committee. But most importantly, I will not get another opportunity to write an editorial for the Review. That is why I am trying to give this editorial my all.

I distinctly remember the first article of mine which was published in the Review. It was the same piece that I had written as a test for induction into the most powerful and influential media group on the Fort -'The Scindia School Review'. The article was about the scientific possibility and pros and cons of cloning, which may not have been particularly enlightening, but was entertaining enough. And the Review, led by Ms Puja Pant then, took me under its wing. Much later when I became the Editor-in-Chief of the Review, I followed a very strict strategy of Shantanu polishing my work and I took all the credit! Regardless of how luxurious was the deadline given to me, I always began writing my articles a day before the submission date and this editorial is probably the only one that I have actually submitted in advance.

Anyway, I guess this reminiscent rant of mine will never end and I can imagine your impatience at attempting to go through all this. Hence, I would just like to conclude this editorial and with it my time here at Scindia by thanking the entire faculty and all the students and wishing them all the very best for the future.

I give all my best wishes to the Review and now I ask all my readers, for one last last time ever – 'Please read on...'

Changing mores of Indian Women

Ms Priyanka Agarwal

On the occasion of International Women's day, I was inspired to pen my thoughts on 'The Changing mores of Indian Women'. Having been raised in a typical Indian patriarchal society, with my roots in Meghalaya - a state which follows a matriarchal lineage, I take pride in the fact that I have had a rather liberal upbringing having keenly observed the best and diverse nature of both the worlds. I have seen my grandmothers and mother leave their childhood home and make home and hearth in unfamiliar territories and situations, playing significant roles in decision making and becoming rightful beneficiaries of inheritance. Also, they have been peace makers and have ensured amicability in the household. Such women are undoubtedly an embodiment of selfless dedication and unflinching devotion - being devoted towards in-laws even after the demise of their spouses. On many occasions they suppressed their desires and remained silent in the face of adversity. They did not dare to reason, reject or deny what may have come their way. I have utmost respect for them for all that they did to hold the family together and am sure their parents were extremely proud of their daughters' achievements - that in the face of trying times and challenges, their girls nonetheless succeeded most often to be that ideal Daughter-in-law of India.

With the passing of time, the empowerment through education and increased awareness there has been a huge change in the mind-set of women today. This is reflected in the varied roles that a woman plays today. The modern woman has gathered courage to follow her dreams. She shows as much interest in cookery, knitting, art and craft as in driving, hiking, skiing, sports and games. She loves to explore the world on her own; she travels the road less taken and is not afraid to accept new challenges. She no longer succumbs to impositions and superstitious beliefs of society without understanding or reasoning. She no longer chooses to marry a man without knowing him. The modern woman walks shoulder-to-shoulder with men at work and is juggling between homemaking and a career. So basically she has to multitask and wear different hats to suit every purpose and occasion. Thanks to science and technology, for giving her the opportunity of conveniently doing so.

There has been a paradigm shift on the roles of a woman. However, female infanticide, eve-teasing and ghastly crimes towards women are still prevalent and in the workplace, a woman's personal life is still pried on. It is time we collectively strive towards ensuring, that women are 'liberated' and 'empowered' in the true sense of the terms. She should be able to freely walk on the streets without any fear, freely choose not only her career but also her relationships, pursue her dreams without being burdened about fulfilling societal expectations and should be able to share platonic friendship with a man without being judged and scrutinised.

As women, let us seek inspiration from the first ever Indian batch of female fighter pilots; entrepreneurs like Indra Nooyi, sports women like Mary Kom and Saina Nehwal who have proved their mettle and exemplified the changing role of women.

I conclude with the words of the renowned American philanthropist, Oprah Winfrey whose TV shows have been a source of motivation, "The more you praise and celebrate your life, the more there is in life to celebrate".

EMPATHY BUILDING EXERCISE WITH JUNIOR SCHOOL

On 18th March 2016, A Life Skills workshop was conducted in the assembly hall for the students of Junior School by Ms Niharika Kulshreshtha. It started with giving handouts to the students on learning about empathy. The kids were asked to close their eyes for 2 minutes and imagine themselves to be in the 'shoes' of a stray dog, a river, a mountain, a poor child etc. and describe the feeling. Responses were elicited on a worksheet about how they could help. This was followed by screening of the movie, 'Front of the Class'. The movie is based on the true story of Brad Cohen played in the movie by James Wolk who after being challenged by Tourette's syndrome from a very young age, defies all odds to become a gifted teacher. Despite suffering from Tourette's syndrome, Brad Cohen (James Wolk) fulfills his lifelong dream of becoming a teacher in this touching production based on a true story that highlights this often misunderstood disorder. As Cohen grows up, he must face friends and classmates who don't realize that he sometimes cannot control his outbursts, and a father who seems unwilling to accept his son's condition. The movie kept the young kids spell-bound for 90 minutes.

School celebrated 'Holika Dahan' on the 23rd of March. A wonderful musical programme followed the Pooja. There was a riot of colours the next morning i.e. on the 24th of March.
